Finding the Funds to Fight Cancer

Directory of Funding Sources for Prevention and Control Projects in Texas

Photography Credit:

The photographs in this directory were taken as a part of a photography project by Jamey Scott. Jamey is a cancer survivor and a photography student at Paris Junior College, Paris, Texas. Under the guidance of teacher, Marvin Gorley, Jamey devoted her time and energy to photograph cancer survivors from Paris, Texas, to be used in the Finding Funds to Fight Cancer 2009 Directory.

Much thanks to Jamey, Marvin Gorley, and each of the courageous participants for your gift of time and talent.

Introduction

The “Finding Funds to Fight Cancer” 2009 Directory is provided by the Cancer Prevention and Research Institute of Texas for users who are seeking funds to start, sustain or grow their cancer control projects. This Directory lists over 2,700 funding sources that have given to cancer related programs in the recent past.

This information is provided to help find the funding to provide Texans with the tools they need in the fight against cancer. Getting and keeping a program funded is no small task. Fund development is a complex and multi-layered undertaking for any organization. Knowing where the money is will save time and effort.

For instance, did you know that 87% of donations come from individuals? Foundations and corporations make up the other 13%, and many of those provide in-kind matching donations as well as budget dollars. All of them have a specific funding focus that may or may not match the mission of your organization. Go ahead and spend the time doing research on sources that are a good match; it will save time and energy for you and the funder.

Large governmental and national grants are certainly appealing. The prospect of huge dollar awards and multi-year funding are tempting. In rare cases, your organization might be an eligible contender for these kinds of funds. It takes a great deal of time and specialized skills to be competitive for large grants, though. Remember, the bigger the scope, the more competition there will be for the same dollar. However, large grants are not your only hope. In fact, most of us will never write a huge grant. Most of us will never need to. You might find what you need in your own back yard.

It is wise to consider potential donors in your own community or region. More funds are donated to worthy causes by private donors than are distributed through grants. Local businesses, local foundations and private philanthropists are willing to help fund health programs, especially if they know the funds are being used to better their own community. The very proximity of these relationships makes it easier to nurture and sustain them.

Directory Layout

The experienced fund seeker targets potential funders by thinking of this “radius of relationships.” The closer they are, the more likely they are to fund a project. The design of this directory is based on that concept. The first section, Texas Foundations, will be the first place to look for Texans seeking to fight cancer in Texas. The Corporate Foundations are next. Their giving interests vary, obviously, but those that support cancer control efforts will tend to do so in specific regions or places, further narrowing the field of seekers that match their corporate mission and chosen locale.

Governmental, or public, grants are usually highly competitive, but more often than not, their funding focus is highly specific. Projects can usually tell at first glance if they are a match for the proposal. National foundations are the least likely to fund your project. The field of contenders is nationwide, and the giving parameters are often very constrained to programs who provide services on a national level.

The “Resources for Cancer Programs” section at the end contains a number of invaluable listings that support staff, training, data, technology improvements, as well as other in-kind services. Most are free and are intended to help you help your organization above and beyond funding.

Readers will note that the first part of the Directory is presented in an annotated format for those whose search technique is drawn to the narrative kind of entry. The remainder of the Directory is an alphabetical list of every state, corporate, governmental and national funder that have given to cancer control efforts. In many cases, the entries, although condensed, contain much more specific contact information.

Quick References:

Grant Writer’s Toolbox and Funding Revenue Streams

On the following pages, some ideas and references are provided that will help less experienced grant writers organize their activities and efforts to save time and gain efficiency in the fundseeking process. The Toolbox lists specific documents and information that are required in virtually every grant. Keeping this information updated and available in both hard and electronic copies for inclusion in your proposals will expedite the process.

The table of Revenue Streams is a quick reference guide to the various kinds and levels of funding sources with examples of each. This format will help the fundseeker understand and subsequently organize their efforts when it comes to targeting funders that are most likely to be a good match, especially as that search focuses on nearness and scope, from specific to general, large to small, near to far.

To further assist you in your search for funding the entire Directory is available in an Excel database online at the CREP website at www.fundingsolutions.org. This list has over 2,700 entries in 36 different categories that can be sorted by categories in order to refine your search for funders who are most likely to provide assistance for your program.

The Cancer Resource Enhancement Program, funded by CPRIT, has assembled this Directory for your use. If you have any questions, please contact:

Grant Writer's Toolbox

Getting Started

Prospective grant seekers can prepare for the task ahead by assembling a "tool box" of key documents to use when submitting applications. Foundations, government funding sources and sponsors often ask for information about applicant organizations that can be found on specific lists or tables including:

AGENCY PROFILE:

- o brief history of organization and description of its mission
- o name, address and phone number of organization, project sites
- o list of board of directors, officers, & other key people / their affiliations
- o name and/or signature and title of chief executive officer
- o contact person for the project
- o qualifications of key personnel

PROJECT PROFILE:

- o statement of problem project will address
- o detailed description of project
- o population served
- o timetable for implementation and evaluation of project
- o how project's results will be evaluated or measured

FINANCIAL PROFILE:

- o amount of funding requested for the project
- o copy of IRS Determination Letter
- o copy of current year's organizational budget and/or project budget
- o listing of additional sources and amount of support
- o how project will be sustained once grant maker support is completed
- o copy of most recent annual report/audited financial statement/990

Keep these documents current and on file both as electronic and hard copies. Data they include may be used to answer questions on application forms, pasted into proposal narratives, and included as strategic attachments for request letters. To minimize the stress that comes with working on time-sensitive deadlines, save frequently requested information in individual files as well as within copies of the completed applications.

Texas Foundations

Abell - Hanger Foundation

The foundation makes grants to nonprofit organizations involved in education, health services and services, arts and cultural activities and community or societal benefit. The Abell-Hanger Foundation has deep roots in Midland and the West Texas region and a deep sense of obligation to the people and rural communities of West Texas. The trustees have a strong commitment to continue the Abell's philanthropic interests by targeting a preponderance of the foundation's annual grant budget to Midland and fifty-five other counties in West Texas: Andrews, Bailey, Borden, Brewster, Crane, Cochran, Coke, Cottle, Crockett, Crosby, Culberson, Dawson, Dickens, Ector, El Paso, Fisher, Floyd, Gaines, Garza, Glasscock, Hale, Hockley, Howard, Hudspeth, Irion, Jeff Davis, Kent, Kimble, Lamb, Loving, Lubbock, Lynn, Martin, Menard, Midland, Mitchell, Motley, Nolan, Pecos, Presidio, Reagan, Reeves, Schleicher, Scurry, Sterling, Stonewall, Sutton, Taylor, Terrell, Terry, Tom Green, Upton, Val Verde, Ward, Winkler and Yoakum.

Applicants must seek funding for the same proposal from various sources, as sole support of programs is rarely undertaken.

Deadline: Rolling

Armstrong (Lance) Foundation

The Lance Armstrong Foundation was created by world-champion bicyclist and cancer survivor Lance Armstrong. Funding seeks to improve the understanding of the challenges and opportunities that a cancer experience presents. Projects should be committed to collaborating to address the physical, emotional and practical issues faced by cancer survivors.

Historically, there have been opportunities in the Community Program Grants (Implementation and Evolution grants) and in Research Program Grants (Community-Based Participatory Research Planning). The Foundation changes focus initiatives from time to time, making it important to monitor the site for current funding opportunities. Applicants must be nonprofit 501(c)(3) organizations in the United States and classified as other than a private foundation under the IRS code. Comprehensive Cancer Control Coalitions are eligible to apply through a nonprofit fiscal agent. The foundation's online letter-of-intent application form open March 1.

King (Carl B. and Florence E.) Foundation

The Foundation is principally interested in six broad areas: Aging population, Children and youth, Education, Indigent, Medical and scientific research, Scholarships. The Foundation awards grants in the following areas: Addressing the physical and emotional needs of the AGING POPULATION, especially efforts to preserve and promote the independence, health, and quality of life of seniors; to improve the quality and availability of both nursing home care and alternatives to nursing home care; and to protect seniors from abuse or financial exploitation; addressing the physical and emotional needs of CHILDREN AND YOUTH, especially efforts to prevent child abuse or neglect or mitigate their effects; to provide healthcare; and to promote and to develop sound character and values in young people.

We also support EDUCATION, especially efforts to prepare young children for school; to support the educational process broadly through means such as parental involvement and teacher training (rather than efforts to improve the teaching of a specific subject); to promote adult literacy; to improve English-language skills in both children and adults; supporting student-focused programs at the college level that advance other areas of the Foundation's mission; addressing the needs of the INDIGENT, especially efforts to move the indigent toward economic independence; to encourage their economic and civic integration into society; to provide emergency shelter and assistance; to provide healthcare; to offer transitional housing and supportive services to individuals and families who are homeless or at risk of homelessness; and to promote the creation of affordable housing; and supporting MEDICAL AND SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH, especially research into public health issues that cause a range of chronic health conditions (rather than research into a particular disease or disorder). The Foundation awards grants principally for program support. Under special circumstances, the Foundation will consider capital projects. Applicants must first submit a letter of inquiry and then be invited to submit a full application. Region: Arkansas and Texas. Within the state of Texas, the Foundation is principally interested in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, the Permian Basin, and rural counties without significant philanthropic resources.

Bank of America Foundation

Bank of America's local grant making activities vary depending on what your local community needs. Our local market presidents and their teams develop relationships with other community leaders to determine the best use of philanthropic dollars in each community. Our local market presidents contribute to many organizations helping make their neighborhoods better places to live. Some of the recipients include: Affordable housing organizations, Arts councils, Children's advocacy groups, Local hospice organizations, Senior citizen centers, Small business incubators, United Way of America, Urban ministries, YMCAs. Investing in these institutions that are considered "anchors" helps our neighborhoods develop intellectual, human, and physical capital to strengthen the communities in which we live and work. Bank of America's local leaders, working within their communities, look for opportunities to support community stakeholders - opportunities that will further economic and community development that will do more than put bricks and mortar on your block. When we find those opportunities, we invite anchor institutions to apply for a grant.

Burroughs Wellcome Fund

The Burroughs Wellcome Fund has launched a new institutional award program to support graduate education in programs that will train students for simultaneous expertise in both population approaches (for example, epidemiology) and laboratory-based biological sciences. The awards will provide support for graduate-training programs at degree-granting U.S. and Canadian institutions. Understanding human health will be a focal priority for the programs that are funded. Awards will provide $500,000 a year for five years. Supported programs will train graduate students to the Ph.D. level, but programs may additionally propose giving training access to postdoctoral fellows, medical students, medical residents, master's students, undergraduates, or other kinds of trainees. Proposals must be driven by core components within medical and public health schools. However, beyond those required components, departments or centers located within non-medical parts of a university, existing inter-institutional collaboratives, research museums, free-standing research institutes, and other nonprofit institutions that provide advanced-level training are all acceptable as potential additional partners. Dental, osteopathic, and veterinary medical schools are also considered appropriate applicants.

The foundation is interested particularly in educational enrichment, recreation and youth development activities. General operating support may be provided in unique situations; most grants, however, are made for specific projects and programs. This foundation values new programs responding to changing environments and will consider funding original and pioneering projects. Most grants range from $5,000-$25,000. Further, the Educational Matching Gifts Program, sponsored by the parent McKesson Foundation, encourages financial support to higher education, elementary and secondary schools. Associates' and retirees' gifts to eligible institutions are matched on a dollar-to-dollar basis.

Quiksilver Foundation

Nonprofits located in oceanside communities receive preference for funding through the Quiksilver Foundation, the giving effort of the beachwear manufacturer, but national efforts may apply, too. Quiksilver provides clothing for surf board riders, thus seeks to maintain the communities where they live through the foundation. Grants go for environmental, educational, health and youth-related projects. Grants are provided in two categories—Local Communities and Major Special Projects & Organizations (national projects impacting boarder communities). Several high schools have benefited from the foundation's Local Communities program, as well as hospitals and youth and adult fitness programs. Major Special Projects receiving funding include everything from oceanic research to breast cancer awareness campaigns. While there are no deadlines, Local Communities grant applications are assessed at the end of each month. Major Project applicants are reviewed at board meetings at the end of each quarter. Online and mailed applications are accepted.

Ronald McDonald House Charities

Ronald McDonald House Charities and its global network of local RMHC Chapters provide grants and program services designed to make an immediate, positive impact on children in need around the world. RMHC provides grants to nonprofit, tax-exempt organizations whose national or global programs help improve the health and well-being of children. Programs that focus on a specific community or area should submit grant requests to a local RMHC Chapter for consideration. To be considered for funding, an applicant must be designated a not-for-profit, tax-exempt charitable organization. U.S. charities must have a 501(c)(3) tax-exempt status letter on file with the Internal Revenue Service. The RMHC board of trustees is most interested in national or international organizations that have a specific program related to children's health and well-being. Organizations seeking funding should have a specific program that directly improves the health and well-being of children; addresses a significant funding gap or critical opportunity; has long-term impact in terms of replication or reach; and produces measurable results. Organizations seeking funding should have a broad base of funding support, management capacity to effectively execute the project, and a clear, concise plan for project evaluation with outcome measurement.

Federal Surplus Real Property for Health Purposes

Under this program, the Secretary of Health and Human Services (DHHS) is authorized to deed or lease surplus real properties for public health purposes. The surplus real property will vary, but could include land, office buildings or public facilities such as hospitals. Eligible applicants must demonstrate their ability to maintain the property and carry out the proposed health program. Title V of the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Act requires that a priority be placed on homeless assistance programs for use of the properties. If homeless assistance programs do not apply, applications can then be considered for health-related programs. Both public and non-profit institutions may apply. The DHHS Division of Health Facilities Planning publishes a list of health programs that would be eligible to use the surplus real property.

Contact: The Federal Register publishes lists submitted by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) of surplus properties to assist the homeless. HUD also maintains a toll-free number for property information: 1-800-927-7588. For information about the Surplus Real Property Program for Public Health Purposes, contact the Division of Property Management, DHHS, Program Support Center, Room 5B-41, Parklawn Building, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Maryland 20857, (301) 443-2265; (301) 443-0084 (fax).

- Federal Housing Administration Hospital Mortgage Insurance Program

Hospitals can obtain mortgage insurance through the Federal Housing Administration to finance new construction and modernization or to purchase major movable equipment (e.g., hospital beds, wheeled equipment, office machines, etc.). Hospitals can enhance their credit-worthiness for loans and tax-exempt bonds, and obtain favorable interest rates by obtaining FHA mortgage insurance. The program is authorized under Section 242 of the National Housing Act. It is administered by the Bureau of Health Resources Development of the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) through an agreement between HUD and the Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS).

www.hud.gov/offices/hsg/hosp/hsghospi.cfm

Acute care hospitals are eligible to apply. There is no dollar limit for the insurance, but the mortgage may not exceed 90 percent of the estimated replacement cost of the property covered by the mortgage. The application requires a Certificate of Need issued by the state in which the hospital is located, or an alternate study if there is no state agency requirement. It must be for a first mortgage on the entire hospital. The program will not cover projects for which construction has already begun. Contact: Call the Health Facilities Program Branch, Division of Facilities and Loans, Office of Special Programs, HRSA, (212) 264-4624. Applicants are also encouraged to contact their HUD State Office. Call your local housing authority or planning office for assistance in locating the HUD State Office. State Office contacts are listed at the HUD.

US Department of Agriculture -
Distance Learning and Telemedicine Program

USDA invites applications for the Distance Learning and Telemedicine Program. This program provides financial assistance to encourage and improve telemedicine services and distance learning services in rural areas through the use of telecommunications, computer networks and related advanced technologies. Approximately $58 million in FY 2008 funding is available to support grants, loans and combination loan-grants. Grants may range from $50,000 to $500,000; loans and combination loan-grants may range from $50,000 to $10 million. Grant applicants must demonstrate matching contributions, in cash or in kind, of at least 15 percent of the total amount of financial assistance requested. Combination loan-grants will normally be offered at a loan-to-grant ratio of nine to one (i.e., $9 in loans for every $1 in grants); for projects involving electronic medical records systems, combination loan-grants will be offered at a special rate of four to one. Eligible are incorporated organizations or partnerships; Indian tribes or tribal organizations; state and local units of government; consortiums; and other legal entities, such as private corporations organized on a for-profit or nonprofit basis.

US Department of Agriculture - Rural Housing Service (RHS) - Community Facilities Direct and Guaranteed Loan Programs

The Rural Housing Service administers the Community Facilities Direct and Guaranteed Loan Programs to help develop "essential community facilities" for health care, public safety and public services. Health care facilities such as hospitals, clinics, ambulatory care centers, rehabilitation centers and nursing homes can apply to RHS for direct loans or loan guarantees. They must be located in rural areas and towns with populations of 20,000 or fewer.

Rural health providers seeking capital support to set up and equip a telemedicine or telecommunications program can turn to a number of agencies for grant information:

- Office for the Advancement of Telehealth (OAT). OAT administers the Rural Telemedicine Grant Program. Up to 40 percent of grant funds may be used for equipment. The funds may not be used to purchase or install telecommunications transmission equipment. For information on eligibility and available funding, contact OAT at (301) 443-0447; (301) 443-1330 (fax).
- National Library of Medicine (NLM). The National Library of Medicine has several types of grant programs to fund equipment and related costs enabling health care institutions to connect to the Internet. For information, contact the National Library of Medicine, Division of Extramural Programs at: (301) 496-4621; (301) 402-2952 (fax); or contact your Regional Medical Library by calling 1-800-338-7657.

US Department of Agriculture -
Rural Utilities Service Telemedicine Program

Distance learning and telemedicine grants are specifically designed to provide access to education, training and health care resources for people in rural America. The Distance Learning and Telemedicine (DLT) Program provides financial assistance to encourage and improve telemedicine services and distance learning services in rural areas through the use of telecommunications, computer networks, and related advanced technologies by students, teachers, medical professionals, and rural residents. The grants are awarded through a competitive process. Eligibility: Only entities legally organized as one of the following are eligible for DLT grants: a. An incorporated organization or partnership, b. An Indian tribe or tribal organization, as defined in 25 U.S.C. 450b(b) and (c), c. A state or local unit of government, d. American Cancer Society

As the nation's largest private, not-for-profit source of funds for scientists studying cancer, the American Cancer Society (ACS) focuses its funding on investigator-initiated, peer-reviewed proposals. This process ensures that scientists propose projects that they believe are ready to be tackled with the available knowledge and techniques, rather than working on projects designed by administrators who are far removed from the front lines of research. This intellectual freedom encourages discovery in areas that scientists believe are most likely to solve the problems of cancer. Access the website for index of current funding opportunities.

American Dental Association Foundation

The American Dental Association Foundation provides grants, on a rotational cycle, for sustainable programs in dental research, dental education and access to dental care. The main objective is to develop a course curriculum to train dentists to recognize, treat, and prevent complications and emergencies related to sedation and general anesthesia, with special emphasis on airway management. Dentists are increasingly using sedation and anesthesia in the dental office and a certification course does not yet exist to train dentists in sedation-related emergencies. Unlike in medicine, dentists operate in the patient's airway, which presents unique challenges. Most state dental boards require Advanced Cardiac Life Support certification for dentists who are permitted to administer sedation and anesthesia in their states. There is a need and demand for a course that focuses on emergencies most likely faced by dentists in their offices, especially related to airway management. The foundation seeks proposals that would meet this need and contribute to improving the overall safety and efficacy of dental care.

American Dental Association Samuel Harris Children's Dental Health Fund

The ADA Foundation invites applications for the Samuel Harris Fund for Children's Dental Health, a permanent endowment fund dedicated to improving children's oral health. The Harris Fund will award competitive grants of up to $5,000 each to applicants whose oral health promotion programs are designed to improve and maintain children's oral health through community education and outreach programs. The grant program's main objective is to help children whose socioeconomic status impacts their access to professional oral care and adversely affects their oral health habits at home. Proposals from community-based, nonprofit, oral health promotion programs in the United States and its territories that comply with the program's submission guidelines will be considered.

Examples of qualified oral health promotion programs include the following: dental health education programs in conjunction with preventive programs such as fluoride and dental sealant application programs; oral health and nutrition education materials designed for parents, caregivers, and/or child care professionals; dental health education conducted at schools, health fairs and social service agencies, or via outreach programs; instruction in the proper use of oral care products; and development of public service announcements to increase awareness of, and appreciation for, proper childhood oral care.

American Journal of Health

Presented annually by the American Journal of Health Promotion, the Robert F. Allen Symbol of H.O.P.E. (Helping Other People Through Empowerment) Award honors individuals who have worked to promote cultural diversity within health promotion or who have demonstrated significant achievement in serving the health promotion needs of underserved populations. National prominence or celebrity status is not a criterion for the award. The purposes of the award are to: 1) reward those who have devoted their careers to serving underserved populations and promoting cross-cultural harmony; 2) disseminate innovative and effective strategies to promote cross-cultural harmony; and 3) increase the attention directed toward these efforts within the health promotion community. Award winners will be selected from nominations submitted by peers. The award winner will receive a cash prize of $3,500 and a commemorative plaque.

American Legacy Foundation

The American Legacy Foundation offers the Dr. Alma S. Adams Scholarship for Outreach and Health Communications to reduce tobacco use among what the foundation calls "Priority Populations." The foundation defines priority populations as those populations which are disproportionately targeted by the tobacco industry, or which often lack the tools and resources to combat smoking in their communities. Identified priority populations are Native Americans/ Alaska Natives, Hispanics, African Americans, Asian/ Pacific Islanders, Low SES, and Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender communities. The Adams scholarship will award a total of $10,000 annually for up to two candidates to pursue undergraduate or graduate studies at an accredited institution of higher education in the United States. The scholarship will be awarded to individuals who have demonstrated a commitment to community service or used the visual arts or media to convey culturally appropriate health messages on behalf of a disadvantaged population.

American Medical Association Foundation

The American Medical Association Foundation's Healthy Communities/Healthy America Fund provides grants to support physician-led clinics in the United States that are already promoting healthier communities and addressing the needs of patients who face obstacles in accessing care (low-income, uninsured, and underinsured people). Grants will be awarded to free clinics that are requesting funds for specific projects (rather than activities such as routine operations, maintenance, or facility repairs); have regular operating hours (e.g., clinics that are open for more than just one day/week); have significant physician involvement (e.g., clinics that were established by a physician, or where a physician serves as medical director or head administrator, or where there are a substantial number of physician volunteers); and provide medical services. Preference will be given to applicants who demonstrate how grant dollars will be leveraged to provide the greatest amount of care. Federally qualified health centers and referral networks that coordinate care but do not provide direct care themselves (e.g., Project Access programs) are ineligible to apply.

American Medical Association Foundation Fund for Better Health

Grants have historically supported programs addressing these four public health issues: (1) Caring for the Uninsured/Underinsured, including programs such as clinic projects, health fairs and health screenings that provide care and/or health education to the uninsured and/or underinsured. It also includes guidance and education to the uninsured and/or underinsured about insurance eligibility. Projects are encouraged to have an emphasis on patient access to quality care. (2) Healthy Lifestyles, including programs such as nutrition & physical fitness, immunizations, HIV/AIDS education and prevention, skin & other cancer awareness/prevention, teen pregnancy, alcohol, tobacco, & drug prevention/education, smoking cessation and the prevention of favorable depictions of smoking in the media. (3) Public Safety, including programs such as anti-bullying, domestic violence, suicide prevention, teen dating violence and internet safety. (4) Patient Safety & Health Literacy, including programs such as health literacy projects and projects that aid an organization's ability to identify and report medical errors, implement proven practices to reduce errors and create provider and consumer awareness of the issue. A maximum of $2,000 will be distributed to each grant recipient.

American Society of Health-System Pharmacists Research and Education Foundation

The American Society of Health-System Pharmacists Research and Education Foundation created the Award for Excellence in Medication Use Safety to honor a pharmacist-led multidisciplinary team for its significant institution-wide system improvements relating to medication use. The $50,000 award, which is sponsored by the Cardinal Health Foundation, recognizes on a national level pharmacy professionals who have assumed a leadership role in promoting safety in the medication-use process. The award also honors two finalists, each of whom will receive $10,000. Practitioners from all hospitals and health systems within the United States are eligible to apply for the award. The practitioner's hospital or health system must be licensed by the state(s) in which it is located. Each application for the awards program will be evaluated on a five-point scale using the following four criteria: medication-use system initiative/scope, planning and implementation, measurable outcomes and impact, and innovation and applicability.

Dana Foundation

The Dana Foundation is seeking proposals for its neuroimmunology program, which has been redesigned to focus on brain infections and cancers. Specifically, the foundation will be inviting studies of 1) immune-based therapies for primary brain tumors, and for metastases to the brain of other cancers; 2) immune responses to infections in the brain, including but not limited to viral encephalitis, meningitis, cerebral malaria, and prior diseases; and 3) how the immune system affects the brain and how the brain modifies immune function. Projects should be designed to be completed within the $200,000 award total over a period of up to three years. Each U.S. medical school dean, as well presidents of the few selected biomedical research institutions that have been invited by letter, may nominate one proposal. Investigators at institutions that are affiliated with a medical school are eligible to apply only through their affiliated medical school by submitting an application to the medical school dean. Projects involving collaborations with NIH intramural researchers or industry scientists are acceptable. Support is focused primarily on providing research support to faculty researchers early in their career, at the assistant professor level, and/or early in their associate professor career. Established researchers pioneering efforts in these two fields (brain infections and cancers) are eligible to apply; post-doctoral fellows are not.

Komen (Susan G)

ASCO Diversity in Oncology Initiative

The Susan G. Komen for the Cure/ASCO Diversity in Oncology Initiative is designed to facilitate the recruitment and retention of individuals from populations underrepresented in medicine to cancer careers, with particular attention to the development of clinical practitioners and investigators. Beginning this year, three programs will be offered for individuals interested or currently practicing in the oncology field. Although a number of programs exist to recruit individuals underrepresented in medicine, few of these programs focus specifically on recruitment to clinical oncology. Ultimately, it is hoped that increasing diversity in the clinical oncology profession will lead to increased and improved cancer care for underserved populations as well as increased research on health disparities.

Kopelman Foundation

High priority will be given to early-stage, entrepreneurial projects that will have a direct, measurable impact on substantive problems of today's society. By focusing on small, yet high-impact projects, the Foundation seeks to fund ideas that previously might not have attracted a lot of attention and therefore received little financial support. We are looking for projects that embody creative thought, calculated boldness and prudent risk taking. The Foundation likes to fund programs that motivate individuals (or groups) to do something of a special nature on their own, that allow for the display of personal initiative, that empower people, or that involve the launching of novel enterprises. Additionally, we want our grants to make a significant difference towards the success of a project. The scope of most medical problems and the magnitude of the financial resources necessary to have a real impact make it difficult to identify a targeted area in which the Foundation can make a significant difference. Special attention will be given to projects that investigate new and innovative technologies, provide counseling and support for families and inform people better about chronic diseases (focusing on cancer) and their prevention and care. Region: We will fund appropriate projects regardless of their geographical location.

Kresge Foundation

The Michigan-based Kresge Foundation offers support for efforts that seek to improve higher education, healthcare and long-term care, and human services for the underserved. Kresge is unusual because of the large size of its awards and its flexibility, which includes capital campaigns, construction of facilities, renovation, purchase of real estate, and the acquisition of major equipment or an integrated system at a cost of at least $300,000. Many of the grants have ranged between $150,000 and $600,000. Please note that Kresge seldom is the largest private gift in a campaign. Nonprofit organizations with 501(c)(3) status are eligible. Governmental agencies also are eligible to apply. Only one per institution accepted in any 12-month period. Although applications are accepted year around, trustees approve grants four times a year in March, June, September and December.

Lalor Burdick (Anna) Program

The Anna Lalor Burdick Program seeks to educate young women about human reproduction in order to broaden and enhance their options in life. The trustees award a small number of grants in the range of $10,000 to $50,000 each. Normally, grants are awarded for one year only. The program focuses particularly on young women who have inadequate access to information regarding reproductive health, including the subjects of contraception and pregnancy termination, and as such may be particularly lacking options in their lives. Community health centers are encouraged to apply for a grant. The program emphasizes support for one-time projects, ongoing projects, new projects and initiatives that demonstrate realistic plans to achieve greater financial self-sufficiency; support for new or smaller organizations where funding will increase public visibility, improve standing with funders and facilitate overall organizational development. Or, in the case of the well-defined projects of larger organizations, add a new dimension or capability to operations; support for collaborative efforts among nonprofit organizations; support for organizations that can demonstrate a proven ability to reach out to, include and involve young women with inadequate access to information regarding reproductive health and support for new ideas, initiatives and demonstration projects, which, if proven effective, may be successfully replicated or provide multiple benefits.

Langeloth (Jacob & Valeria) Foundation

In an effort to advance two areas the Foundation's Board considers to be significant in the healthcare field, the Foundation has established priority funding status for proposals that address 1) caregiving, and 2) correctional health care.

CAREGIVING: The shortage of and demands placed upon paid and unpaid caregivers are reaching crisis proportions. The lack of training and other forms of support for voluntary caregivers and parallel issues in the paraprofessional healthcare field threaten the health and well-being of many Americans. In response, the Langeloth Foundation seeks to support creative and replicable interventions that address this national problem. The Board is particularly interested in projects that are conducted by or in partnership with community-based organizations.

CORRECTIONAL HEALTH CARE: Incarcerated individuals experience disproportionately higher rates of infectious and chronic diseases, substance abuse, mental illness and trauma than the general population. As such, jails and prisons represent one of the largest target populations for public health services in America, and are important sites for improving the overall health and well-being of communities. The Foundation is interested in projects that seek to improve the health (physical, mental, substance abuse) of inmates during their time of incarceration, and as they transition back to their home communities.

Macy (Josiah) Foundation

The Macy Foundation is primarily focused on domestic health professional education. Proposals are evaluated on the importance of the project and its relevance to the foundation's funding priorities; the significance of the project's expected results and potential applicability to similar situations; and the sponsor's commitment to continue successful programs after the Foundation's support ceases. The foundation's funding priorities are:

- * projects to improve medical and health professional education in the context of the changing health care system;
- * projects that will increase diversity among health care professionals;
- * projects that demonstrate or encourage ways to increase teamwork between and among health care professionals; and
- * educational strategies to increase care for underserved populations.

National Cancer Prevention Fund

Throughout history, the most significant advances in public health have been achieved through prevention. Smallpox, TB, polio, the plague - all were defeated by preventing their occurrence. Cancer is no exception. But much more needs to be learned about the over one hundred diseases known as cancer. The primary mission of the National Cancer Prevention Fund (NCPF) is to raise funds to support comprehensive programs of research into cancer prevention and control, and to educate the public to the opportunities of cancer prevention and control through community programs of education, research and behavioral change. There is a compelling need to fulfill this mission. Today in America, only 10% of federally funded grants are prevention focused. Less than 30% of all cancer research grant applications submitted annually to the government receive funding, and cancer prevention is the least supported area in the cancer research spectrum. This means that valuable life-saving research remains seriously unfunded.

Robert Woods Johnson Foundation

Childhood Obesity Grants

Healthy Eating Research, a national program of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, supports research on environmental and policy strategies to promote healthy eating among children to prevent childhood obesity, especially among low-income and racial/ethnic populations at highest risk for obesity. Findings are expected to advance the foundation's efforts to reverse the childhood obesity epidemic by 2015. Current funding focuses on policy and environmental studies in four areas: 1) food pricing and economic approaches; 2) food and beverage marketing and promotion; 3) interventions and policies to increase access to affordable healthy foods in low-income communities; and 4) valuations of other promising food-related policy and environmental strategies. Approximately $3.5 million will be awarded for two types of research grants focused in the four areas listed above. The small- and large-scale studies category will provide 12- to 18-month awards of up to $150,000 each, and 18- to 36-month awards of up to $400,000 each. The macro-level analyses category will provide 12- to 18-month awards of up to $100,000 each. Preference will be given to applicants that are either public entities or nonprofit organizations. Applicant organizations must be based in the United States or its territories at the time of application. The focus of this program is the United States; studies in other countries will be considered only to the extent that they may directly inform U.S. policy.

Robert Woods Johnson Foundation Health & Society Scholars Program

The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Health & Society Scholars program is designed to build the nation's capacity for research, leadership and policy change to address the broad range of factors that affect health. The program is based on the principle that progress in the field of population health depends on collaboration and exchange among the social, behavioral, biological and health sciences. Scholars receive an annual stipend of $83,000 in year one and $86,000 in year two.

The program's goal is to improve health by training scholars to rigorously investigate the connections among genetic, behavioral, environmental, economic and social determinants of health; and to develop, evaluate and disseminate knowledge and interventions based on integration of these determinants. The program is intended to produce leaders who will change the questions asked, the methods employed to analyze problems and the range of solutions designed to reduce population health disparities and improve the health of all Americans.

To be eligible, scholars must have completed their doctoral training by the time of entry into the program in one of a variety of fields, including, but not limited, to the behavioral and social sciences, the biological and natural sciences, health professions, public policy, public health, history, and ethics; have significant research experience; have clearly connected their research interests to substantive population health concerns; and be citizens or permanent residents of the United States or its territories.

Association of Fundraising Professionals Survival Kit for Fundraising in a Bad Economy

A tumultuous economy can present unique challenges for nonprofit fundraising. Looking for ways to cope? AFP has compiled a toolkit of resources to advise and guide fundraisers in tough economic times. "Donors have a lot on their minds these days as they sit down with their personal budgets," explains Paulette Maehara, president and CEO of AFP. "But despite the headlines about Wall Street and the financial markets, we as fundraisers should not lose sight of the fact that giving is a way for communities to pull together. While the economic forecasts are uncertain right now, what is quite certain is the capacity of people to lend a hand and support institutions of all kinds. We hope you'll use AFP as a resource in garnering vital support for your organization in what may be a wild ride over the next few months."

Bank of America Foundation Grant Search Portal

Bank of America announced a new, national Web site through which non-profit organizations can research and apply for grants from nearly 70 foundations managed by Bank of America. In its role of distributing more than $350 million annually to charities on behalf of the foundations for which it serves as trustee or grant-making agent, Bank of America Philanthropic Management now offers enhanced search and online access to detailed information about an array of foundations.

The company has redesigned and significantly broadened the capabilities of its public-facing "Search for Grants" site, providing non-profits with a single point of access to the financial services industry's most sophisticated, comprehensive online resource in support of these organizations' fundraising efforts. Enhancements include:

Find a Foundation - Search for a foundation by individual criteria, such as name, geographic coverage area, and focus area, including arts and culture, education, health and human services, among others. Advanced search capabilities allow non-profits to further narrow their search by combining criteria, such as region and focus area (i.e. Connecticut and Education).

Single point of access - Gather information about each foundation through a consolidated portal that allows non-profits to quickly determine a foundation's mission, regional application procedures, proposal deadlines, contact information, and whether or not their organization may qualify for a grant based on the foundation's application criteria.

Grant-making History - To help non-profits gain a better understanding of our client foundations' grant-making history, Bank of America has posted recent grants awarded by each foundation that can be searched by geographic area.

Standard Application Format - An "Applications & Procedures" section of each foundation's portal site offers instructions, requirements and links to grant application forms. Most foundations allow for Bank of America to present these forms in a Standard Grant Application format helping to further simplify and streamline this process. Application documents required by each foundation must then be submitted by mail or email to the respective contact name and by the appropriate deadline. Applicants must be classified by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) as a 501(c)(3) public charity.

Increased Transparency - Bank of America has designed this portal in part to provide greater visibility into and awareness of the foundations it manages, including how they give, what they give and to whom. www.bankofamerica.com/grantmaking

BoardSource - Conflict of Interest Issues

How does a nonprofit safeguard against organizational conflict of interest? Why must we be concerned about conflict of interest? Does conflict of interest involve only financial accountability? What can we do to prevent conflict-of-interest situations? From the IRS.

www.boardsource.org/Knowledge.asp?ID=3.389

The IRS has also published a suggested conflict of interest policy. It is included in the instructions for completing Form 1023 (the Application for Exemption under Section 501(c)(3)). This detailed and comprehensive policy is available for viewing/download at:

www.irs.gov/instructions/i1023/ar03.html

BoardSource - Practices of High Performing Boards

One of the biggest challenges for nonprofits is to sufficiently engage the board and to encourage the board members to ask the right questions. Exceptional boards focus on four fundamental concepts or practices: Strategy - including being mission-driven, using strategic thinking and sustaining resources. Accountability - including having compliance with integrity, being results oriented and promoting an ethos of transparency. Relationship building - developing a constructive partnership between the CEO and board, ensuring revitalization and implementing intentional board practices such as thinking about board size, structure and meetings. Dynamics - nurturing a culture of inquiry, continuous learning, self assessment, and independent mindedness when making decisions.

Cancer Survival Toolbox

The Cancer Survival Toolbox is a free, self-learning audio program that has been developed by leading cancer organizations to help people develop important skills to better meet and understand the challenges of their illness. On this site, you can read or listen to the Toolbox in English and Spanish, or download the files to read or listen later. Chinese transcripts are also available. You can order a free CD version of the program by filling out our online form.

www.canceradvocacy.org/resources/publications/orcalling877.NCCS.YES.

The goal of the Toolbox is to help you develop practical tools in your daily life as you deal with your cancer diagnosis and treatment. Family members and caregivers can also use the Toolbox on behalf of a child or anyone else with cancer. The Toolbox includes twelve modules. Modules 1 through 6 cover six basic skills that can help people with cancer meet the challenges of their illness. These skills are Communicating, Finding Information, Making Decisions, Solving Problems and Negotiating and Standing Up for Your Rights. Modules 7-12 build on the skills learned in the first six modules and relate them to specific aspects of cancer survivorship. These modules cover: First Steps for the Newly Diagnosed; Topics for Older Person; Finding Ways to Pay for Care;

Caring for the Caregiver; Living Beyond Cancer; and Dying Well - The Final Stage of Survivorship.

CDC Nutrition and Physical Activity Training Course

The CDC offers an online training course called "Social Marketing for Nutrition and Physical Activity", designed to be used by practitioners in the field. It comes from the Division of Nutrition, Physical Activity, and Obesity, so those topics are the focus of the training course, but it can be adapted to fit other topic areas. The advice is practical and concrete, with scenarios that present challenges that users can try to respond to. A "Check Your Knowledge" feature provides feedback. The course includes tips for working with limited resources, worksheets, a glossary, and links to resources. The CDC also has many other social marketing resources available.

CDC Workbook on Promoting Health Equity

A growing number of research studies have documented the relationship between social determinants of health and health outcomes. However, relatively little is known about how to translate this knowledge into practice. A new workbook from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and partners addresses this gap. "Promoting Health Equity - A Resource to Help Communities Address Social Determinants of Health" was created to support new and existing partnerships to address the social determinants of health inequities and highlights lessons learned by communities. Designed for a wide range of users, the workbook provides information and tools to develop, implement and evaluate strategies aimed at addressing social determinants of health inequities.

DonorPages Social Network Fundraising Tool

DonorPerfect has released DonorPages, which empowers an organization's supporters - its donors, volunteers, board members and other constituents - to raise money and awareness for their nonprofit's mission! With DonorPages, a nonprofit can create an event/campaign website that allows its supporters to easily create their own individualized web pages.

DonorPages also utilizes the latest Web 2.0 technologies, which enable supporters to use email or social networking sites such as MySpace or Facebook to invite everyone they know to visit their "cause" page. Motivating page visitors to donate online, or take other desired actions such as registering for an event, signing a petition, etc., is made easy with on-page links. DonorPages provides a full set of features to support team-based fundraising, sponsored events such as walk-a-thons, races, etc., as well tributes and memorial-oriented contributions.

All donation and registration data collected via DonorPages can be quickly and easily downloaded into SofterWare's popular DonorPerfect or DonorPerfect Online fundraising software, or any spreadsheet or database.

IRS 403(b) Requirements Changes

Mike Sorrells from Cherry, Bekaert, & Holland, L.L.P provides a brief overview of the preparations needed to meet the new IRS 403 (b) requirements. The new IRS reporting and compliance regulations for 403(b) retirement plans will take effect on January 1, 2009. Most tax exempt employers and employees are aware that the 403(b) plan offers a significant vehicle for retirement savings. Unlike the 401(k) plan commonly used in the for-profit environment, 403(b) arrangements have never been regulated or subject to the same level of scrutiny by the government. However, this will soon change. For plan years beginning on or after January 1, 2009, 403(b) plans that are subject to ERISA will need to comply with the same annual reporting requirements as other tax advantaged (qualified) plans. www.cbh.com/bulletin-403bplan.php

Learn to Love Lobbying

Most nonprofits don't know how to lobby and, worse, think that it entails cutting shady deals with sleazy characters. In this lively and inspiring talk from the Stanford Social Innovation Review's recent Nonprofit Management Institute, Fraser Nelson, nonprofit consultant and former executive director of the Disability Law Center of Utah, debunks the "it's not allowed," "it's too dangerous," and "it's too sleazy" arguments, demonstrating that lobbying is nothing more than educating legislators—a right that our democracy guarantees. To make the changes they want to see in the world, nonprofits must learn to lobby. And who knows? They may even learn to love it.

Microsoft NGO Connection Online

Microsoft Corp. announced the global availability of NGO Connection, a new online resource for thousands of nonprofit groups around the world. Driven by feedback from nonprofit partners and years of experience working with nongovernmental organizations (NGOs), the online resource is designed to assist NGOs to more efficiently use technology to achieve their goals as well as to encourage networking and coordination of NGO resources across the world. The primary goal of the new online resource is to provide a convenient and easy one-stop shop for technology resources, knowledge sharing, community building and real-life examples for nonprofit organizations. NGO Connection also makes it easy for NGOs to share best practices and case studies, giving them the option of participating in an online forum where they can engage in dialogues about using technology effectively and share solutions to some of their common challenges. The goal is to help NGOs make the connection between their needs and how to solve them with technology.

Online Survey Tools

While they're not going to be the right fit for every research need (for instance, a paper survey is likely to get a much higher response rate at an in-person event, and provide more accurate data among populations that are not as comfortable with computers), online surveys are great for gathering informal data quickly and easily. Below, we walk through the online survey tools that have worked for others, and might work for you as well.

Basic Survey Tools

A number of low cost online tools provide easy interfaces for building surveys and viewing reports online. These packages can be a great fit for smaller surveys where advanced question types, survey logic, and results analysis are not required.

SurveyMonkey offers a popular online hosted survey tool that works well for basic surveys. They offer a free version that might be useful for very small and informal surveys, but this version allows very little customization of the look of the survey, no downloads of reports or data, and can only collect 100 responses per survey. The Pro version - at about $20/month or $200/ year - offers the ability to create multi-page surveys or to define skip logic. The package's folder structure and "search by title" feature makes it easy to navigate through many surveys. Reports are minimal, but they allow you to export results to another application to do more serious analysis.

Zoomerang is similar to SurveyMonkey in many respects, but offers in general a somewhat more powerful package for somewhat more money. Like SurveyMonkey, they offer a very limited free package; the more useful advanced package is offered to nonprofits for $350 per year for unlimited surveys, questions and respondents.

The survey building tools are not quite as intuitive as SurveyMonkey's - it can be a bit more difficult to learn. However, Zoomerang offers more extensive reporting than SurveyMonkey, with a flexible cross-tabulation report tool that allows survey administrators to see the data relationships across any set of questions.

SurveyGizmo offers a low cost solution with some advanced features. The free version supports 250 responses per month; they also have a range of more advanced packages from $20/month to $160/month. At all levels, SurveyGizmo offers basic piping, fully customizable survey look and feel, and the ability to embed images and videos hosted on your own website. More advanced levels offer many randomization options (question options, questions per survey page, and pages themselves), skip logic, and more. SurveyGizmo offers an API for integrating survey functionality into websites, blogs and other applications, including with Salesforce.com.

PollDaddy offers surveys and polls that can be easily embedded into external websites and applications. They offer the ubiquitous free package, with a maximum of 10 questions and 100 survey responses per survey. More advanced versions cost between $20/month and $100 /month. Their survey features are more limited than some of the other options in this category, with no skip logic or piping, but survey administrators have a lot of flexibility over the look of the survey, by selecting from pre-designed templates, or fully customizing the template by editing stylesheet code. Surveys can be delivered in pop-up windows, and results can be tracked via RSS feed.

Cost Integrated Solutions

There are a number of inexpensive solutions that bundle in additional features outside of surveys and polls. These can be quite useful if you find that your survey needs often overlap with others - for instance, the need to send emails. However, the survey functionality within these integrated tools tends to be fairly basic - they're unlikely to meet the needs of those who are looking for advanced survey logic or analysis features.

Constant Contact offers "Listen-Up", a hosted survey tool with some interesting benefits. Although Constant Contact does not offer a free option, its fee-based packages are competitive with other lower cost options, ranging from about $10 to $150/ month depending on the number of respondents who will be answering surveys. Constant Contact offers more than 40 predesigned templates with some ability to customize them. Surveys can include skip logic, and can be scheduled in advance. The tool also offers a variety of emailing and email management services, including contact importing, list segmentation and basic contact management. Reports are quite basic, but data can be exported for analysis in another tool.

FormSite offers a tool for building website forms - everything from simple "contact us" forms to evaluation forms. Although their focus is on forms for feedback and test taking, FormSite offers a basic set of survey features, and may be useful to those looking to collect a lot of different types of information via web-forms. Features include multiple page surveys, question randomization, basic skip logic and piping. Surveys can be customized to match your website by someone familiar with HTML. They offer a variety of prices, including a limited free account, and packages ranging from $10/month to $100/month.

Moodle is a powerful open source course management software package primarily targeted at schools and universities. It integrates website content management and online course management together with survey and test-taking solutions. The survey tools are geared for those gathering feedback from students to assess teaching methods - several verified survey instruments are provided for this purpose. Moodle may be appropriate for nonprofits running training programs or schools, who are seeking an all-in-one website, course and survey management solution for their programs. The package is free to download, but will require substantial technical knowledge to install, configure, customize and support.

www.moodle.org/

More Advanced Survey Packages

If you are looking to conduct larger scale research, marketing and feedback analysis projects, a more powerful survey package could provide welcome functionality. These tools offer significantly more advanced question formats, survey logic, and data analysis. The more complex functionality makes them more difficult to use without training, especially for those without prior survey design expertise.

SurveyZ provides advanced survey logic and analysis targeted at research surveys, with a focus on academic institutions. Qualifying nonprofits can get a bargain: a free "consultant" account for a year, which allows up to 1000 responses per month and two surveys at a time. The corporate plan is $10,000/yr. It provides data analysis support for cross-tabulation, conjoint analysis, subgroup analysis, time series analysis, and more.

www.surveyz.com/

QuestionPro packages range from limited low cost versions to more advanced $250-$850/month options. The package allows you to re-use questions from one survey to the next, or to pull questions from a standard survey template library. The more advanced - and expensive - packages offer skip logic, piping, randomization, and even more complex survey logic, as well as multimedia and multilingual support. They offer an API to exchange survey data with outside applications, including a module for Salesforce.com integration.

LimeSurvey is a powerful, free and open source survey package for appropriate for nonprofits who are looking for advanced survey logic and analysis feature, and who have substantial technology support. Its range of features includes full customization of survey look and feel, support for 40 different languages, piping, skip logic, a library of available survey questions, and blast emailing. The tool has a large support community and is under active development. This is an open source package that can be downloaded for free, installed on your own web server, and customized to your needs by a developer with knowledge of PHP/ MySQL. Although the tool itself is free, be prepared to bear the costs for your own web hosting, and time it takes to properly install, configure, customize and support this product on your own.

www.limesurvey.org/

Key Survey is the most robust of the advanced survey tools covered in this article. Prices range from $1950 to $5950 per year for single user subscriptions. It offers a full set of features, including several unusual advanced ones such as LDAP integration to allow single-sign-on models for large organizations, role based permissions, support for "teacher/student" surveys, multimedia questions, and much more. They also offer an API to exchange survey data with outside applications, with a module for Salesforce.com integration.

(The) Point

The Point is a website for organizing group actions. We help people congregate around the issues they care about and combine forces to make things happen. Campaigns (group actions) on The Point are all based on the "tipping point" model - participants take action to solve their problem, but only once a critical mass of people have committed such that the combined force will "tip" the issue. The Point helps you know in advance whether your participation will make a difference.

The Point can be used for fundraising: unlike traditional fundraisers, on The Point, no one parts with a dime until enough people pledge funds to reach the tipping point. A campaign organizer starts a campaign to raise a specific amount (the "tipping point") of money for a shared good or cause. People pledge funds, but no money is collected unless the campaign reaches its tipping point. If the campaign tips, everyone's credit card is charged and a check is mailed to the campaign target.

Speaking Together Online Toolkit for Building a High-Quality Language Services Program

For millions of people in the United States, language barriers in the health care system are a daily reality, leaving patients who speak or understand limited English unable to communicate effectively with their doctors and nurses. They risk receiving poorer quality of care and have worse outcomes as a result. The recently completed Speaking Together: National Language Services Network program, funded by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, aimed to improve the quality and availability of language services offered at hospitals. Ten hospitals with linguistically diverse patients worked for 18 months to study and improve the language services that they provide. Learnings from Speaking Together have been compiled into a toolkit offering detailed guidance to other hospitals nationwide on how to build a high-quality language services program.

State Governmental Agencies

Agencies administering grant programs are also useful sources of funding information. Examples of departments supporting rural health activities include health, mental health/substance abuse, social services, and transportation. A directory of these agencies should be available through your local library. The Centers for Disease Control also maintains links to state and selected county health department web sites on its "Information Networks and Other Information Sources" web page.

State Offices of Rural Health

The Federal Office of Rural Health Policy provides funding for state Offices of Rural Health in all 50 states. Each state office identifies state programs relating to rural health and provides technical assistance to organizations interested in obtaining financial assistance. These offices also serve as information clearinghouses on rural health care issues, research findings relevant to rural health care, recruitment and retention issues of health professionals, and innovative approaches to the delivery of health care in rural areas. A list of these offices is provided in Appendix A.

TechSoup Stock

TechSoup Stock is an online product donation service that connects nonprofits with technology product donations from more than 20 leading hardware and software providers. All products are available either for donation, or for prices that are deeply discounted just for nonprofits. TSS serves 501(c)(3) nonprofits, public libraries and Canadian nonprofits and charitable organizations. TechSoup Stock charges an administrative fee for each product, which typically compares to 4% to 20% of the product's published retail value. This fee covers handling, ground shipping and customer support. TechSoup Stock offers only high-quality computers formerly used by large corporations. These are machines that typically are phased out after two to three years of use and are in very good condition. Since January 2002, TSS has distributed more than 866,000 technology products worth over $245 million.

Youth Master Plan Action Kit for Municipal Leaders

This action kit for municipal leaders offers tips and advice for the development of a city-schools youth master plan. By using a master planning process to develop a shared framework and more effectively coordinate services for children and youth, communities can reduce duplication and waste, identify unmet needs, eliminate barriers to services, make better choices in allocating resources among competing priorities, and increase the return on investment for local programs. More than 20 cities across the nation have undergone a youth master planning process.

Detailed List of Funding Sources

This portion of the Funding Directory is an alphabetical listing of all the foundations, corporations and governmental entities that have funded cancer programs in recent years. The format of the list - funder name, location and basic contact information - makes it easily accessible and usable for users of all skill levels.

The entries in this database list can be found on the CREP website at www.fundingsolutions.org. This list is updated monthly. Each source has been included for their support of cancer control activities of varying kinds. The online file, in Excel format, can be downloaded and then sorted and filtered by 36 different categories, or keywords, relevant to a project's funding needs. For instance, entries can be sorted by city or state if location is a primary search parameter.

The same applies for other project "keywords" (listed in the database as categories) such as "youth," "prevention," "specific organ," and so on. Users can generate highly customized lists by filtering entries through categories of interest they select. Survivorship programs can search by categories such as nutrition, rehabilitation, elderly services or other words that fit their descriptions. Prevention projects can access categories for youth, tobacco, and education. The initiatives focusing on professional education can search in categories like conference support and health education.

There are also categories that would reflect keywords for other funding needs, like "technology," "capacity building," or "seed money," all of which would address the needs of an organization from an evolutionary perspective rather than a programmatic one,

The database also has information about the kind of application process required by each funder - online only versus mail in, full proposal versus letter of intent.

Finally, one of the most useful features of the database is the mail merge function. Once the user has created the perfect list for their needs, Excel will merge those contacts into a mail out with internal and external addresses at the click of the mouse.

This directory was designed with imminent usability in mind. The database is designed that way as well - not for endless reading and cross referencing but with working parts that provide immediate, executable results! If you have any questions about the following list or using the Excel database version, please contact:
